Middlebury To Graduate Sixteen Seniors, June 18

SENIOR WEEKEND TO BE INFORMAL

Baccalaureate Service To Be Combined With Degrees

Middlebury College will confer degrees on sixteen students at exercises to be held Sunday morning, June 18, in Mead Memorial Chapel. Due to the unusually small number of students graduating, there will be no formal Commencement ceremonies.

Senior Week-end

An informal Senior Week-end will take the place of the usual Senior Week. The class will hold its traditional picnic at noon on Saturday, June 17. Parents of graduating students and some members of the faculty will be guests at the outing.

Dean Eleanor S. Ross will be guest of honor at a dinner for graduates and their families to be given Saturday at 7.00 p.m. At this time Dr. Samuel S. Stratton will present departmental honors earned by the students.

Services Combined

The usual Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises will be combined in one service held Sunday at 11.00 a.m. The ceremony will follow the order of the usual Chapel service with a Scripture reading, a selection by the choir, a short address by a local speaker and conferring of degrees.

Seniors graduating at this time are as follows: Men's College—Alfred G. Boissevain, W. Neil Prentice, R. Staniford Speck. Womens College—Helen C. Bailey, Harriet A. Bartels, Dorothy J. Burton, Mabel H. Buttolph, Nona M. Fife, Dora Hetherston, Theodora M. Jay, Jean Lacey, Lois McElroy, A. Patricia Noe, Ramona Redman, Phyllis V. Rutan, Elizabeth N. Thompson.

Future plans of the graduating students are varied. Alfred Boissevain will take a temporary position with General Electric before entering M. I. T. for advanced work in technology. Neil Prentice will enter the Royal Canadian Air Force on May 30 and will report for active duty in a month from that date. Helen Bailey will have a job as a contract writer for a Hartford life insurance company. Harriet Bartels will be Dr. Juan Centeno's secretary at the Breadloaf Spanish School this summer. Dorothy Burton will enter

Blue Key Society Taps Webber '45, Percival, Gale '46

Joe M. Webber '45, Paul H. Gale '46, and William C. Percival '46 were tapped in Chapel last Tuesday for membership into Blue Key, an honorary society for men with outstanding scholarship, participation in student activities, and athletic ability.

Webber is active in football and baseball, and is a member of Kappa Delta Rho. Gale, Delta Upsilon, played freshman football and hockey. Percival, Theta Chi, participates in student government and activities, serving on the Men's Assembly and the Lodge Committee. All three have exceptional scholarship.

Donald I. Gale '43 and Alfred G. Boissevain '44, the only members of Blue Key remaining from former years, tapped the new members and presented them with the metallic blue keys that are the symbol of the society.

Columbia Honors Three Graduates With Fellowships

Three Middlebury alumnae have been awarded fellowships by the University Council of Columbia University in New York City.

Miss Mary E. Burtis '29 and Miss Alice M. Guest '30 are the recipients of the George W. Ellis fellowships for English and Comparative Literature offered annually by Columbia University and Miss Eleanor M. Walker '42 received a University fellowship from the faculty of philosophy for French.

Miss Burtis and Miss Guest are residents of New Jersey. When Miss Burtis was in college she was an active member of the French Club and a member of the Pan Hellenic Council. She was a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, and in her senior year she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Miss Guest was a social editor of '30 Kaleidoscope. She was vice-chairman of Junior Week, a member of Pan Hellenic Council and active in athletics during her college career. In her senior year Miss Guest was elected to Mortar Board, senior woman's honorary society. She was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

How a Fairy Tale Came True at Midd, Or Cinderella Has Nothing on B. Co-ed

By Janet Kraft '47

Once upon a time there was a little girl who was so good that her parents, who were also very nice, sent her to Middlebury College to get an education and have a good time. This little girl went all winter long and worked very hard and learned a lot. She was very industrious, and really meant to keep on working, when suddenly its was spring.

Now in order to understand why the little girl stopped working and started to have a good time when spring came, I will have to tell you what spring looks like in Vermont. For weeks everything is gray and brown and rainy, and then one day you wake up and the birds and sun are there, and you know that pretty soon the flowers will be too. The little girl liked flowers very, very much, and she was anxious to be the first person to see some.

Floral Message

One morning as she was walking to Chapel, she noticed a lot of big pink and white blossoms growing along the walk, and as she went up to see what kind they were, she discovered that they had something written on them. They looked very interesting, so she stopped to read what they had to say. Each flower had a message on it about the Junior Prom which was to be on May 13, and they sounded so enticing that the little girl knew at once that what she wanted more than everything else was to go to the dance.

The story books tell us that every good little girl and boy has a godmother or godfather to watch over them and reward them when they are good, and I believe it's true, because that very day the little girl got an invitation to the dance. Prince Charming, who is wearing his navy blue uniform for the duration, called her up on the telephone and told her how much he'd like to take her, and she told him how much she'd like to go with him and so they were both happy.

Now that her wish was granted, the little girl began to think about what she would wear to look nice and please her Prince Charming. All of her friends, and

A. F. deLanux Plans to Join French Army

Anne-Francoise deLanux '47, daughter of M. Pierre deLanux, professor in the Political Science Department and Mrs. deLanux, left College Monday, May 15, for New York City where she will await call for service with the Fighting French.

Action After Much Deliberation

She applied for service last week-end while in New York. This has been a long deliberated course of action for Anne—better known to her college associates as "Bikou"—for she has been planning to join some branch of the service since she was a senior in high school. When she receives her orders she will be sent first to an American camp, probably Fort Mead, for her basic training. This training will be with American army forces and will include mechanized training and a study of the organizations of both French and American armies.

After this training period, providing her visa comes through as expected, she will go to Algiers where she will take more courses that will equip her to do liaison work which is acting as a go-between French and American forces in France.

Plans Still Indefinite

"All of this is still very, very indefinite" Bikou said "That's the way I hope it will work out but I'll have to wait and see."

She was born in Paris and has a double citizenship since her mother is American. She came to this country in September 1939, and entered the Putney Preparatory School in Putney, Vt. She enrolled in Middlebury in July 1943, and at present she is in the first semester of her sophomore year.

Informal Dance To Be Saturday In College Gym

The Men's Undergraduate body and the Middlebury College Players will jointly sponsor an informal dance Saturday, May 20, at 8 p.m., in the College Gym. Plans were discussed at a meeting of the Men's Assembly on Monday, May 15. Thornton Schoch '45, Hadden Clark '46, and Mortimer Harmon '47 are in charge of the dance. Music will be recorded, and the price will be 50 cents per couple.

Plans were also formulated at this time for a tea dance. Hadden Clark and Donald Hyde '46 will be in charge of arrangements for the dance. The official date has not been decided upon, but it will be given on some Saturday afternoon in the near future.

The men voted on entering a choir in the step singing which is scheduled as a part of the June Week program. George Merritt '46, and Ray Sacher '47, who are both members of the Middlebury College choir, were chosen to be in charge of the proposed step singing group.

Mortar Board Opens New Smoking Lounge

A women's smoking lounge was opened under the auspices of Mortar Board in room 203 Munroe Hall on Wednesday, May 10.

A definite need was felt for a room of this type where students might go for the ten minutes between classes to smoke and relax, and where they could study during the morning and afternoon. The lounge may be used during the hours that Munroe Hall is open.

Furniture was contributed by the sororities. It is hoped that additional furnishings may be procured through the social committee.

Mary A. Williams To Be Dean of Women's College

Mary A. Williams

Replaces Dean Ross; Duties To Begin Next Term

Miss Mary A. Williams, Director of Admissions of the Women's College of Middlebury, has been appointed Dean of Women to replace Miss Eleanor S. Ross, who will retire at the close of this term. Miss Williams will take over her new duties on July 1, 1944.

Miss Williams received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Middlebury in 1936. While an undergraduate, she was the Women's editor of the Campus, president of Mortar Board, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. After her graduation, she taught in a secondary school at Eaton, N. Y.

In 1937 she was awarded an Exchange Fellowship to the University of Frankfurt, Germany, and upon her return took the position of Assistant in the German Department of Middlebury College. Having attended the German Summer School at Bristol for the summers of 1936, '37, '38, '39, she was awarded a Master of Arts degree in 1939.

This same year Miss Williams was appointed to the position of Director of Admissions, which she has held up to now. Her appointment to the position of Dean of Women was made May 11 by President Samuel S. Stratton, after consideration of several applicants.

As yet, Miss Williams' successor as Director of Admissions for Women has not been announced.

Original Songs To Be Featured In Step Singing

Step singing, an annual tradition at Middlebury which was omitted last year, will take place this year on June 11 on the steps of Mead Chapel.

Four classes from the women's college, plus four companies from the Navy, and a group from the civilian men will compete for first place. Songs are to be original, preferably with a tune composed by one of the students, but if that is impossible the words are to be original, while the music can be set to that of hymns.

The maximum number of songs which can be sung in the step singing contest by each group is three while the minimum is two songs. All songs are to be related in some way to Middlebury or the Navy.

Nettie-Mae Merritt '45 is in charge of the Senior step-singing committee, and Margaret B. Hood '46 heads the Juniors. Both these classes are choosing their songs from a variety submitted. Cynthia Jane Proud '46 and Jane M. Laux '47 are co-chairmen of the Sophomore group. The music has been written by Jeanne L. Lewis and a committee formed to write the words. Barbara Parcher '47 heads the Freshman song-writing committee.

At a later date the definite time, order, and prizes for the singing will be announced.

Group Discusses Cultural Trends Between Wars

American culture between the first and second World Wars was the subject of the Humanities discussion on Wednesday, May 10, at 7.15 in Munroe Hall. Jazz, dance, and literature, and their influence on our culture were the specific topics discussed.

Professor Cook, moderator, opened the discussion with the general summary of the trends abroad in America during this period. Painters like John Sloane opposed the academic theory and expressed their individuality. This spirit of revolt against conventionalism was also shown through magazines to which Willa Cather and Theodore Dreiser contributed.

Influence of Jazz

Mortimer F. Harmon '47 spoke about the influence of jazz on American culture. He first defined jazz as "collective improvisation" and went on to say that of all music, it is the most typically American, coming as it does from the roots of America and representing all types of people. He gave a little of the rich and varied background of this type of music, which had its origin in Negro spirituals and songs such as Stephen Foster wrote.

In the '20's there came a split in jazz between "collective improvisation" and commercialized music, i.e., music written

Army Major Tells Women About WACS

Major Joseph Milanor clearly outlined the various opportunities and activities of women in the WAC for students of the women's college interested in going into the service after graduation last Wednesday evening in Munroe 303. He illustrated his talk with movies of the life and work of a WAC.

Major Milanor, who served in the last war overseas for 16 months and is now in the Army Transport Command, explained that there is an urgent need for women in every branch of the WAC to replace the critical manpower shortage in this country. Since WAC was formed two years ago on May 17, the essential basic training has not changed. The women started out by doing four or five important jobs and have now advanced to 239 of which they are capable; 80 percent of the jobs in the Army can be done as well by women as men. College graduates are especially needed in the WAC now because of their advanced training.

Army Transport Command

Major Milanor stressed particularly the duties and action of the Army Transport Command and also the openings for members of the WAC in this branch of the service. The Army Transport Command is a non-combat organization and all the planes are principally for cargo. It has advanced since it was formed in 1941 to a personnel of 100,000. This branch of the service flies to every country in the world not Axis-controlled, and covers 110,000 air miles. Their duties consist of carrying mail, which Major Milanor stressed as being the first and foremost one, and also carrying materials and evacuating the wounded.

Keeping In Line

The Pan-Hellenic Code, passed by the sororities this week shows another step forward in maintaining high standards of conduct in Middlebury. At the same time, it is a means of further justifying the existence of sororities on campus. If the Code is enforced as it should be, and will be, Pan-Hellenic is doing a service to the college in making people conscious of rules and traditions, of courtesies and social amenities.

According to the Code, the sororities will individually decide upon the means of most effectively carrying out the eight points, but the president, who is answerable to Pan-Hellenic, is to see that the system is coordinated within her chapter. Sorority women should not feel that this is just another set of rules hanging over their heads, but rather a reminder of proper behavior which has never before been written down as such. The purpose, to make us aware of what we already know but sometimes forget, and the subsequent enforcement of the Code, does not interfere with Student Union judiciary power.

Printed below is the Code as drawn up by Pan-Hellenic, the aim of which "is to make all fraternity women aware that their conduct and attitudes reflect not only upon themselves, but upon their fraternities, and upon Middlebury College."

All fraternity women:

1. Will make themselves familiar with the aims and functions of the honor system, and will adhere to these. Each fraternity woman will feel her individual responsibility in the maintenance of the honor system, through social pressure. Any comments or criticism, concerning student government, will not be suppressed, but will be addressed to the proper channels—namely, house meetings, Women's Assembly, or President of Student Union.

2. Will adhere to the rules and regulations, and to the Clothing Code, of Student Union, as set forth in the handbook.

3. Will respect the traditions of Middlebury College, as set forth in the handbook.

4. Will take pride in, and will try to maintain, the appearance of their college campus. For example:
   a. Using discretion in cutting campus.
   b. Keeping clean sunbathing areas.

5. Will show a courteous attitude toward faculty, administration, and residents of the town of Middlebury.

6. Will show consideration for others in Chapel exercises, classroom, and library.

7. Will maintain high ideals of social conduct.

8. The President of each fraternity is answerable to Pan-Hellenic Council for the conduct of all active members of her chapter. Each fraternity has the authority to handle its members, under the Code, as the majority of the chapter deems fit. It must be understood that this Code does not interfere, in any way, with the Judiciary powers of Student Union.

If the fraternity feels itself incapable of handling a particular case, it will refer that case to Pan-Hellenic Council, which will assume responsibility.

Vocational News

More and more opportunities for summer work for college students arrive each week. Among those this week is the call of the Vermont Women's Land Army for over 100 college girls to work a minimum of two months. Most of the work will be on dairy farms and thus the biggest job of the summer will be haying. If a girl is dissatisfied with the farm she is on, and if there seems to be no solution for her problems, she may be transferred to another farm, but she is asked to work at least two months because of the trouble it takes to train someone else. Thirty dollars a month plus room, board and laundry is the minimum wage.

Counselloring Jobs

The Family Society of New Haven needs counsellors in its fresh air camp at Goodsell Point, Branford, Conn. The season is from July 1 to September 2.

Recreational leaders are needed for the summer by the Department of Social Welfare of New York for work in the New York State Training School for Girls at Hudson, N. Y. Room and board are furnished and there is a small salary.

Auto Mechanics Attracts Interest Of Sixteen Girls

Sixteen girls are now enrolled in a course in auto-mechanics held Wednesday evenings in the basement of Warner Science Building. The classes, consisting of ten two-hour lectures, are being conducted by Leon Burby who has given a similiar course at the college in the past. The regular lectures will be complemented with review and practical work, and the fifth and tenth meetings will consist of examinations. The subjects covered will include: the motor, the transmission, the drive shaft and rear axle housing, the fuel pump and gas line, the ignition, the lighting system, the cooling system and front wheel suspension, changing tires and the lubrication system.

Taking the course are: Elizabeth Adell, Barbara Blair, Faith Freeman, Lael Kennison, and Jessie Woodwell all of the class of '45, Barbara Kingsley, Jeanne Picard, Marguerite Romer, Barbara Snow, Mary Stuart, and Marjorie Wight, class of '46, and Ruth Ann Britton, Dorothy de Canizares, Barbara Grigg, Jane Laux, Violet Schnyder, and Louise von Thurn of the class of '47.

American Culture

down and played with no opportunity for originality. This type of music is the basis for most of the popular music of today and is often confused with jazz. Jazz is important because of the genius for improvising which a true jazz player must have, because it is so rich in American background, and because it has done so much in bringing Negoes and Whites together.

American Dance

Jean F. Anderson '46 discussed the contribution of the dance to American culture. In discussing the dance in America, she spoke mainly of modern dance, which America has pioneered in developing. Isadora Duncan was the first great name in modern dance. Miss Duncan influenced future modern dancers such as Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn.

Modern Literature

Dorothy J. Burton '44, discussed the characteristics of American Literature during the last two decades. Sinclair Lewis, John Dos Passos, Thomas Wolfe, Ernest Hemmingway were interested in self-expression. Their books emphasized the shallowness and materialism of American life and culture, and saw human beings overwhelmed by forces over which they had no control.

Willa Cather, Booth Tarkington, and Edna Ferber, humanistic writers, were turning away from their age to write of the past. It was an age of realism and of social criticism. There has been, however, a re-awakening of idealism with the present war.

Student Paintings Sent by U.V.M. Now on Display

By Shirley E. Miller '45

You've seen the work of Middlebury's art class, but have you looked at the 20 paintings sent by the students of art at U. V. M.? They are on exhibition in Forest Rec. and are the work of eleven young painters. The majority of the work is abstract, i.e., the engineering drawing, the bones of painting, and is reminiscent of some of the work of Dali and Picasso. There are, however, two portraits and several landscapes which are directly adapted from life.

We see that there is one trend at U. V. M. to be modern and another to turn back. The latter is evident in their color which reflects the style of the gravy painters and lacks, with the exception of one or two paintings, the delight of most moderns in the use of color. Another trait common to several of the students is the use of landscape as backdrop materal similar to the methods of the Flemish painters.

These apparent conflicts along with the failure of the students to realize their forms completely some overstylization, and their incomplete working of all surfaces, seem to indicate an unsteadiness which, of course, will go with all early work. When, however, these students can widen their ranges to approach that shown in the exhibit here by The American Water Color Society, then will be the time to judge them. In the present period of development, they are naturally prone to imitate, but later when technique and subjects come more directly from their own experiences their stronger work will appear.

Midd Meets Defeat Twice in Baseball

Williams Score Totals 7-6 Trinity Accumulates 20-5

At Williamstown on Friday, May 12, the Panthers suffered a 7-6 defeat when the team accumulated 9 errors to allow the violet to come from behind a 4-2 score at the end of the third inning to win the ball game.

Webber, hurling for Midd had 5 strikeouts, only two walks, and suffered 10 hits. As Midd, too, had 10 hits it is apparent that the difference in score is a result of the nine errors made by Middlebury. Seven men made first and three men scored on errors making a big difference in the final result, for if the errors were halved, the score would have been 6-5 or 6-4 in favor of the Panthers.

At the start of the 6th inning, Wilson scored on Irwin's single to the score of 6-6 and then the violet came back to score LeSoye on Auchterloney's hit to Irwin. This score carried the game when the Middies couldn't get a man past second. In fact the marvelous fielding of the violet kept the Middies from getting a clean hit in these last three innings. Call it a bad break, call it luck, call it anything except defeat. Had the Middies been in their usual form there would have been a different score.

At Hartford on Saturday the Panthers went to pieces in the 5th inning after Sutton's arm went dead. If Sutton had been able to continue the pace he set in the first four innings, this game could have been a victory also, for the score in the fifth was 5-1 in favor of Midd. By the time relief had been warmed up the Trinity nine had put over six runs to bring the score to 7-5. In the sixth inning Margil came into the game, inexperienced and ragged. The rest of the game was entirely Trinity's as they "walked" away with it. It was a lost cause and after the big seventh inning the game was played merely for the sake of the records. If a pitcher can be found to relieve Joe Webber, the Panthers should come through to win the St. Lawrence and St. Michael's games which are coming up.

Science And Music Give Chapel Variety

Two programs which varied from the religious aspect of morning chapel were presented within the last week Talent from the Middlebury V-12 unit was displayed on Friday, May 12 when AS Bruce Carson played his saxophone. Accompanying him at the piano was Miss Nettie-Mae Merritt '45.

Carson's program included the following selections: "The Green Cathedral," "Angel's Serenade" by Braga, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" by Saint-Saens, the third movement from a concerto by Bach, "Ave Maria" by Schubert, and for an encore "Mighty Lak a Rose" by Nevin.

Dr. Evans B. Reid of the Chemistry Department spoke in Chapel Monday May 15, on the newly discovered penicillin. He explained to the student body that this organic acid which is a mold has been worked upon by scientists since 1929, but only recently has it been able to be gotten in large enough quantities to be utilized by the medical profession.

Much research has been done, and much money has been spent in its development. As an antiseptic it is applied directly to wounds, and is effective in cases where the sulfa drugs have failed to respond.

Co-ed's Fairy Tale

she had a lot, were very nice, and they lent her anything that she needed and didn't have herself. When she was all ready to go, she looked very pretty indeed, and Prince Charming was pleased beyond expectation.

The little girl had never seen anything quite so pretty as the decorations. It was just like a spring garden, with trellises of flowers, arbors, and pretty streamers overhead. But the best part of all were the bluebirds singing on the black curtain behind the band. When the little girl saw all this, she knew that she was going to have a wonderful time, because they all meant spring, and that is the season she liked best.

The little girl had such a good time dancing to the music of the Tuftonians that the time went faster than she realized. Before she knew it, it was midnight, and the dance was over. Unlike Cinderella, she didn't have to worry about all the pretty clothes disappearing at the stroke of midnight. She had another half hour in which to look like the beautiful Princess and walk home under the stars. She told the Prince what a wonderful time she had had, and he was very glad. Then the clock struck twelve-thirty, and her magical evening was over. The little girl was very tired, but very, very happy, and she went to bed and dreamed of living very happily ever after. I'm not sure yet if her dream came true, because you see, the little girl might be anyone of us, and all this happened last Saturday night, so it is too soon to tell.

"Crooked" Campus Co-eds Provoke Posture Experts

By BARBIE BLAIR '45

Do you stand like an S, study like a W, and sit like a broken down C? Do you walk like this (I), or like this (/)? Lady, the posture contest is designed to find out!

Spurred on by the disgraceful epidemic of slumps, leans, lists, and languishes of the women's college, the W. A. A. is campaigning to change our crooked ways.

A stroll through the browsing room of the libe any day of the week reveals a female sideshow that would make Barnum sick with envy. Take a look at yonder co-ed, sitting on her neck instead of where she was designed to sit, one foot hooked affectionately around a flood lamp, the other pumping vigorously in time with her muttered efforts at memorization.

Over there is a side-sitter, all 125 pounds resting on one poor elbow and a much abused hip bone. When that half goes to sleep, she'll turn over!

But when you enter that big tent, the dormitory, ladees and gentulmen, the freaks get bigger and better. See Squirmy Sue! She writhes; she wriggles; she crawls on her belly like a reptile!

See the human anatomy locked in deadly combat with the Sunday funny papers! See the tattooed lady, or floor-sprawler, marked for life with the weave of a Forest West rug!

See the Battell marathon sitter! Hasn't come down from her perch on the radiator in 14 days.

Are YOU a Middlebury freak? If so, now is the time to mend your ways. The CAMPUS has just one suggestion to offer. It is our Posture-Kink-Taker-Outer, and has been endorsed by the Good Housekeeping Institute, the Middlebury trustees, and the men who know tobacco best.

Get someone to read the following directions aloud to you, and try it.

Take a straight desk chair and stand on it, as erectly as possible.

Get your roommate to help you. Using her shoulder to steady yourself, raise your right leg slowly until it is parallel to the floor.

Balance a copy of Webster's International Dictionary on your head, and balance a lightweight chair by one leg on your outstretched left palm.

Count slowly to ten.

Now (very quickly), kick upward with your left leg.

. . . . Take the kinks out?

S.A.A. Discusses Election Prospects On Station WCAX

The presidential possibilities for the fall elections were discussed in a radio program sponsored by S. A. A. and broadcast over station WCAX, Burlington on Sunday, May 14, at 1.45 p.m.

Participants in the informal panel were M. Elizabeth Casey '45, Dolly E. Greene '45, Marian E. Fisher '46, and Jane M. Laux '47. As chairman of the S. A. A. Radio Committee, Frances M. Horning '45 directed the group.

Several Candidates Mentioned

The topic was presented in a conversational manner in which the speakers mentioned various possible candidates for the offices of president and vice-president including their qualifications, past records, and chances of election. The speakers did not take definite stands in support of particular choices but each had made a special study of some of the possibilities so that they were ready to answer questions.

Dewey, Roosevelt, Willkie, Stassen and Bricker were among those discussed in the presidential field.

Miss Casey pointed out the difference in the policies of Willkie, who presents his ideas unhesitantly to the public, and Dewey, who does not publish his opinions. This was the reason for Willkie's defeat in Wisconsin and why Dewey, with the campaign tactics of following a machine may win the Republican nomination.

All of Electorate Can't Vote

Two large groups of citizens, a majority of whom would support Roosevelt, will not be eligible to vote. Many laborers have become migrant due to war jobs and will not be able to fulfill residential requirements. The system permitting soldiers to vote is so complicated that many of them will not have a chance next fall.

The Republican situation was discussed more completely than the Democratic, since the greatest question of party candidacy lies with the Republican party. It was concluded that Dewey will be drafted at the Republican convention to oppose Roosevelt and that the fight from there on will be difficult for each candidate.

The Badminton tournament culminated in an exciting and impressive duel between Betty Thompson '44 and Mary Jane Selleck '45 after the third round and semi-finals had been played off. The third round winners were Thompson '44, Taylor '46, Bull '46, B. Nunnemacher '46, Selleck '46, Kendzur '45, Gunther '47 and Boyden '45. In the semi-finals, Bull '46 succumbed to Thompson '44 and Boyden '45 was defeated by Selleck '46. Bull and Rolls acted as linesmen while Boyden was the referee in the final decisive match. The scores of the three games, 3-11, 12-11, and 11-3, gave the title of 1944 Badminton champion to Betty Thompson '44. In the consolation match, Bull '46 was victorious over Boyden '45.
